

Sister Anna Warlow

Sister Anna has been a resident of Three Springs for the last 13 years and has been exemplary in her promotion of good citizenship and a fine example of Christian principles in her service to many in the local community and also to others in neighbouring towns. The centre from which she has operated is called the House of Welcome which truly describes the values she aspires to, a welcoming nature to all while striving to help others in need.

Sister Anna's work has been acknowledged by the Shire of Three Springs. She has developed programs to assist our indigenous people including budgeting strategies, sewing and production of home grown fruit and vegetables. She was instrumental in the raising of funds for the establishment of suitable meeting venues through donations and application for funding from both Church and government sources. The local community also now have established gardens with access to home grown produce.

Left to Right; Lions, Angela Watt, Diana VanBuerle, Allan Watt, Joy Ridley, Liz Eagan. Sr Anna Warlow, Morris VanBuerle, Gloria Burnett, Cathy Reed

The drug problem unfortunately pervades both urban and rural areas and Sister Anna has provided food to those in need and help wherever she can.

Sister Anna has also provided spiritual leadership to local Christians of different denominations and also special support to the aged of the local community.

Sister Anna also works to provide support and encouragement to rural women and their children in remote areas of our North-west of W.A. and regularly visits remote centres with a small group of helpers who travel there over long distances. She has been a source of great inspiration to many women.